TAX LAW

Part I
General Provisions

Article 1. Purpose

The Tax Law determines principles, rules, methods and measures relating to taxation in order to promote manufacturing, services and remittance to the State budget by individuals, legal entities and organisations, which carry out business or make a living on a permanent or temporary basis in the Lao PDR [or] in a foreign country, [and] those which reside or have a place of business located in Laos, in order to justly equalize revenue among all levels of peoples, and to ensure redistribution by the State and to contribute to socio-economic development.

Article 2. Taxation

Taxes [refers to] financial obligations of individuals, legal entities [and] organisations including foreign persons which carry out business or make a living on a permanent or temporary basis in the Lao PDR[,], as well as those which reside or have a place of business located in Laos [but] carry out activities in a foreign country which generate income[, and] which must be paid according to the rates specified in the Tax Law.

Article 3. Scope of Application of the Tax Law

The Tax Law applies to individuals, legal entities [and] organisations including foreign persons which carry out business or make a living on a permanent or temporary basis in the Lao PDR as well as those which reside or have a place of business located in Laos [but] carry out activities in a foreign country which generate income.

Article 4. Tax Authority¹

The tax authority [refers to] an organisation which is attached to the Ministry of Finance and which is responsible for the implementation of the Tax Law, [and] for the collection of tax revenue, fees and other service charges.

A staff member [refers to] a Lao citizen who is recruited and assigned to work on a permanent basis within the tax authority.

A tax officer [refers to] an employee of the tax authority who has been appointed to perform duties outside his office².

Article 5. Modification of Tax Rates

In necessary and urgent situations which require changes to be made to the tax rates in order to protect national interests and to be consistent with the socio-economic situation from time to time, the government shall be the one to send a proposal to the National Assembly Standing Committee which will in turn submit to the President of the State for consideration and issuance of a Presidential edict which will, on a temporary basis, promulgate the amendment. Thereafter, the National Assembly Standing Committee shall submit the amendment to the next session of the National Assembly for adoption as a law.

Individuals and organisations are prohibited from changing the tax rates stipulated in this law.

Article 6. International Relations and Cooperation

The State promotes regional and international cooperation in taxation, the exchange of technical expertise [and] information and in other tax matters on the basis of mutual interests and consistent with the economic situation from time to time.

² Two categories of employees of the Tax Authority are defined in this provision, “staff members” whose work ought to keep them in the offices of the tax authority most of the time and the “tax officers” whose work is performed outside the premises of the tax authority (often on assignment to other governmental agencies).

Part II Tax System

Article 7. Types of Taxes

Types of taxes consist of indirect and direct taxes.

Article 8. Indirect Taxes

Indirect taxes [refers to] taxes which are collected from the consumer of goods³, from the importation of goods, [and from] sales of goods and general services through persons who conduct [such activities] within the territory of the Lao PDR.

Indirect taxes consist of:

- Business turnover tax;
- Excise tax.

Article 9. Direct Taxes

Direct taxes [refers to] taxes which are collected from individuals, legal entities [and] organisations including foreign persons which generate income in the Lao PDR as well as from those which reside in or have a place of business in Laos [but] carry out activities in a foreign country.

Direct taxes consist of:

- Profits tax;
- Minimum tax;
- Income tax;
- Fees and other service charges.

³ The Lao language has two words for goods that may roughly be translated as “goods that the relevant person intends to use for himself” and “goods that the relevant person intends to use in business”. The same item, in the hands of different persons with different intentions towards that same item, would therefore fall into different categories. For example, a bottle of shampoo in the hands of the person wishing to wash his hair would fall in the first category, (and the first word would be used for it) while the same bottle of shampoo in the hands of the importer, or a supermarket would be in the second category. The translators believe that the single English word “goods”, without further qualification, would cover both these Lao words. In this law, the two Lao words are virtually always used together (with a very few instances of the second word being used on its own but without any apparent distinction). Therefore, the translators have simply translated these two words (whenever they appear together or when either appears alone) as “goods”.

Part III
Business Turnover Tax

Chapter 1
Rules relating to Business Turnover Tax

Article 10. Business Turnover Tax

Business turnover tax [refers to] an indirect tax which a consumer of goods or general services pays into the State budget through persons who conduct businesses as provided in Article 12 of this law.

Article 11. Scope of Business Turnover Tax

Business turnover tax shall be collected from the sale of goods and general services undertaken within the territory of the Lao PDR as well as on the importation of goods, except goods and services stipulated in Article 13 of this law.

Article 12. Business Turnover Tax Payment

Individuals, legal entities or organisations which carry out activities shall be subject to business turnover tax regardless of whether they maintain an advanced, ordinary or basic accounting system and regardless of whether the activities are of an ongoing or ad hoc nature, or whether such activities are of a business or non-business nature.

The following activities are subject to business turnover tax:

1. The importation of goods from abroad which is the bringing of goods into the territory of the Lao PDR;
2. The sale of imported or domestically produced goods regardless of whether such sale is a wholesale [sale], retail sale, cash sale, sale on credit, [sale] by consignment or [sale by] barter;
3. General services [, which refers to] an economic activity which is not an importation or production, [or] a sale of goods, but is a provision of labour to another person for which a service fee is received as compensation, such as: transportation, postal [services], telecommunications, construction, repair, contracting for or managing a market⁴, land development for sale of the right to use⁵, hotel

⁵ Readers may wish to refer to the Land Law for more information on the different types of “title” to land (one of which is the “right to use”).

activities, tourism, food and beverage operations, artistic activities, sports activities, entertainment, medical activities, brokerage or agency, property insurance, casino [operation] and other activities which involve the provision of labour and the receipt of compensation except activities which are provided for in Article 13 of this law.

Article 13. Exemption from Business Turnover Tax

The following activities are exempt from business turnover tax:

1. The importation of plant species, animal species and insecticides;
2. The importation of materials, equipment and chemicals for research and scientific analysis;
3. The importation of gold for the institution that prints banknotes⁶;
4. The importation of banknotes or coins;
5. The importation of[,]or activities relating to[,] tax stamps or postal stamps for official use;
6. The importation of aircraft and equipment relating to international air transport;

11. The sale of agricultural products produced by farmers themselves⁸;

13. Activities relating to planting seedlings or saplings, forestation, planting industrial trees, planting fruit trees, [and] planting medicinal trees;

⁶ This is a reference to the national mint.

⁷ In Lao, a comma is often used, without further elaboration, to mean “and”. Wherever the intended meaning is clear, the translators have translated such commas in one of two ways: (i) by deleting the comma and substituting it with the word “and” in square brackets (i.e., [and]); or (ii) by retaining the comma and adding the word “and” in square brackets (i.e., , [and]). Where the meaning is more ambiguous, the translators have translated the text literally, retaining the comma alone.

⁸ In the original text, it is unclear whether the word “themselves” qualifies “farmers” or “sale”.

14. The export sale of goods, packaging services and insurance services relating to export;
15. The sale of authorised textbooks, newspapers and other magazines;
16. International transportation and services directly relating to such international transportation; international transportation means the transport of passengers or goods from abroad or to a foreign country by land, water or air;
17. Transportation by use of human labour, all types of animal labour, and un-motorised boats;
18. Leasing immovable property such as: land, houses, or other property by persons who do not carry out business activities;

23. Activities relating to banking, finance institutions, health insurance, life insurance, livestock insurance and insurance of plantations;
24. Domestic manufacture of bio fertiliser;
25. Fire engines, ambulances, vehicles for disabled people and other professional vehicles used by government agencies including vehicles used in national defence and security;¹⁰
26. Artificial organs of humans and animals used for medical research purposes;
27. Goods and services donated to aid projects as stipulated in specific regulations.

¹⁰ The translators are aware that the items in points 25 and 26 are not stated in terms of “activities”. Presumably, the reference is to the sale and import of these items but there is nothing in the text to resolve this ambiguity.

Chapter 2
Basis, Time for Calculation and Collection of Business Turnover Tax

Article 14. Basis for Calculation of Business Turnover Tax

The basis for calculation of business turnover tax is determined for each specific case as follows:

- For the importation of goods from abroad [the basis for calculation] is the declared value for customs plus customs duty and excise tax (if any);
- For goods sold domestically [the basis for calculation] is the sale price excluding business turnover tax;
- For goods that are produced under contract [the basis for calculation] is the amount charged for such production (consisting of: the cost of hiring, the cost of raw materials and other expenses relating to production);
- For the sale of goods on credit [the basis for calculation] is the total actual price of the goods paid by the purchaser;
- For services [the basis for calculation] is the total income received from such services;
- For goods and services which are subject to excise tax¹¹ the basis for calculation [of business turnover tax] includes the excise tax but excludes business turnover tax.

The basis for calculation of taxes provided in this article includes all costs from additional payments.¹²

Article 15. Time for Calculation and Collection of Business Turnover Tax

The time for calculation and collection of business turnover tax is determined for each specific case as follows:

- For the importation of goods from abroad, business turnover tax is calculated and collected when filing the customs declaration;
- For products, [and] goods sold domestically, business turnover tax is calculated and collected when such goods are delivered or when there is a transfer of the right to use or when an invoice is issued regardless of whether the purchaser has paid or not paid [for the goods];

¹¹ This appears to be a reference to goods and services that are also subject to excise tax in addition to business turnover tax.

¹² This appears to be a reference to costs such as interest.

- For services [business turnover tax] is calculated and collected upon full or partial¹³ completion of the services.

Article 16. Calculation of Business Turnover Tax in the Case of Personal Use and Temporary Import

Goods imported or domestically produced, construction items, or services which the business people use themselves or which are to be given as gifts, [and] prizes are subject to business turnover tax pursuant to this law, except for activities stipulated in Article 13 of this law. The basis for calculation [of the tax] is the price of goods and services used at the relevant place and time.¹⁴

All sales of goods which are temporarily imported from abroad and which are entitled to an exemption from import duty or subject to other special incentives are subject to business turnover tax. The basis for calculation [of the tax] is the actual sale-purchase price at the time [of the transaction].

Article 19. Businesspersons who are Permitted to Offset Business Turnover Tax

Producers, service providers, importers and the seller of goods as provided in articles 11 and 12 of this law, who have paid business turnover tax at the initial stage, have the right to offset the tax paid against the tax payable monthly. In the event that the tax paid at the initial stage is less [than the tax payable], the difference must be paid. In the event that the tax paid at the initial stage is higher [than the tax payable], the excess amount will be offset against [the tax payable] in the following months.

²² Readers should note that the Lao language does not distinguish between genders in pronouns. In this translation, a reference to a gender is a reference to all genders, unless the context requires otherwise. The translators' decision to use the male gender was made in the interests of simplicity and consistency.

Persons with the right to offset such tax shall be those who are registered with the tax authorities and those who maintain proper accounting. They should also have complete documents to evidence their tax payments.

The offset of business turnover tax is specified in separate regulations.

Article 20. Scope for Offsetting Business Turnover Tax

Part V Profit Tax

Chapter 1 Scope, Persons Subject to Profit Tax

Article 30. Profit Tax

Profit tax [refers to] a direct tax which is imposed on the profit of individuals or legal entities which conduct business in manufacturing, trade and services.

Article 31. Scope of Profit Tax

The profit tax is collected from the annual profit of persons generating profit regardless of whether the person generating profit is an individual or a legal entity in the Lao PDR or in a foreign country as stipulated in Article 2 and Article 33 of this law.

Article 32. Profit Subject to Tax

Profit from business operations [refers to] the profit which arises from conducting agricultural and forestry production business, industry and handicrafts [business], including exploitation of natural resources, import-export trade, wholesale, retail and general services such as: logging, mining, transportation, postal [services], telecommunications, construction, repair, land development for sale of the right to use, contracting for or operating markets, bidding and construction of various projects sponsored by State funds, aid funds or foreign loans, banking activities, activities of financial institutions, insurance, hotel activities, tourism, food and beverage operations, casino activities, lottery activities, artistic activities, sports, agency or brokerage activities.

Article 33. Persons Subject to Profit Tax

Sole-trader enterprises and legal entities which belong to Lao citizens, [resident] aliens, [and] apatrids²⁴ [,] including foreigners which carry out activities which generate profit in the Lao PDR[,] must pay profit tax to the State budget.

For enterprises which carry out business in a foreign country[,] but [which] carry out activities or enter into joint ventures under contracts which generate income in the Lao PDR, such enterprises must declare and pay profit tax in the Lao PDR. Before making payment to such foreign enterprises[,] project owners or enterprises must withhold profit tax in order to pay to the State budget.

Article 34. Exemption from or Reduction of Profit Tax

Persons who have been licensed by the government to invest in projects and other priority areas in the Lao PDR shall receive tax exemptions or shall pay profit tax at a reduced rate on a case by case basis in accordance with the law on promotion of investment.²⁵

In order to receive tax exemptions or to pay [profit] tax at a reduced rate, investors mentioned above must maintain a proper accounting system in accordance with the Enterprise Accounting Law.

In the event of natural disasters such as typhoons, diseases, fire, [and] war, the exemption from profit tax or reduction of profit tax will be decided by the government.

Chapter 2 Basis for Calculation and Rates of Profit Tax

Article 35. Basis for Calculation of Profit Tax

The basis for calculation of profit tax consists of two methods²⁶ as follows:

²⁴ Readers may wish to refer to the Law on Lao Nationality for the distinction between aliens, apatrids (i.e. persons unable to certify their nationality) and foreign individuals.

²⁵ This reference is deliberately in lower case because it could pertain to both the foreign and domestic investment laws.

²⁶ There are two regimes for profit tax. In the first regime are enterprises that keep two kinds of accounts. Therefore, there is a total of three methods of calculating the tax basis.

1. Based on the advanced²⁷ or the ordinary accounting system;

The basis for calculation of profit tax for sole-trader enterprises and legal entities which maintain the advanced or ordinary accounting system as are stipulated in the Enterprise Accounting Law consists of two methods as follows:

- Net profit at the close of the accounting year [, which refers to] the difference between the actual remaining value of assets at close of accounts and the actual remaining value of assets at the start of the accounting year minus the amount of additional capital contributed plus personal drawings of [shareholders of] the enterprise within the accounting year.
- The difference between the gross income and total authorised [deductible] expenses of the accounting year.

2. Based on the basic accounting system.

The basis for calculation of profit tax of small business persons and freelancers which maintain the basic accounting system is the difference between the gross income and the total authorised [deductible] expenses of the accounting year. In the event that the difference cannot be calculated, the gross annual profit [will be treated as the basis for calculation].

The gross annual profit is the annual income multiplied by the profit ratio of each type of activity.

The government is to define clearly the regulations regarding the administration of taxpayers according to the basic accounting system and the profit ratio of each type of activity.

Article 36. Method of Calculation of Profit Tax

The method of profit tax calculation is a calculation of an annual payment on the basis of total profit within the year.

The calculation of annual profit tax payable is as follows:

1. For legal entities which carry out business activities and social organisations[,] the profit tax is calculated on the total annual net profit according to the flat rate²⁸ provided in Article 40 of this law;
2. For sole-trader enterprises[,] before calculating [profit] tax of those who have profit from carrying out business or from freelance activities the annual exempt amount must be deducted from the total annual income subject to [profit] tax.

²⁸ This is reference to flat rate of 35% in first bullet point of Article 40.

In the event that the taxpayer has paid profit tax on a quarterly basis in accordance with Article 43 of this law there must be a recalculation of the actual annual profit tax payable.

Income and expense in foreign currency must be converted into Kip currency in accordance with the bank exchange rate from time to time.

Article 37. Deductible Expenses

Businesses that maintain the advanced or the ordinary accounting system are allowed to deduct annual deductible expenses as follows:

1. General Expenses Relating to Business Operations:

- The cost of electricity, water supply, telephone, advertising [and] repairs;
- The cost of travel, entertaining guests can be deducted up to 0.40% of the annual income for each type of expense;
- Salaries of staff [and] workers including social welfare, [and] social security costs;
- Service fees, [and] interest expenses on loans, [and] transportation charges;
- The cost of rental of premises for business operations;
- Property insurance premiums of enterprises;
- Business turnover tax [not permitted] to be offset²⁹ and other fees.

2. Fixed Asset Depreciation:

A depreciation deduction [refers to] a deduction of the reduction in value of fixed assets which have depleted over their period of use or whose technical [capacity] has changed³⁰ in order to accrue funds to purchase a new asset in the future to replace the old one.

²⁹ The literal translation of this term is “non-deductible” or “non-offsettable”. Readers can refer to Article 20 for description of paid business turnover tax that can be offset from monthly business turnover tax payments.

³⁰ This appears to be a reference to assets whose technical capacities have been surpassed by newer technology, thereby reducing their current value, and such reduction in value can be taken as a deduction.

The calculation of the depreciation deduction based on the period of use shall be performed in accordance with the rates provided in the table below:

Depreciable Fixed Assets of Enterprises	Period of Use	Annual Deduction Rate
Enterprise establishment cost	2 years	50%
Structures used for industrial purposes:
- 20 years old and less	20 years	5%
- From 21 to 40 years old	40 years	2.5%
Structures used for commercial and residential purposes:
- permanent structures	20 years	5%
- semi-permanent structures	10 years	10%
Machinery, excavators, clearing and hauling vehicles used in industry, agriculture, handicrafts and other construction work	5 years	20%
Land transport vehicles	5 years	20%
Equipment or sets of tools used for professional purposes or certain works	5 years	20%
Office equipment and supplies	10 years	10%
Installations, improvements and decorations	10 years	10%
Ships and passenger aircraft	20 years	5%

The depreciation deduction [which] may be calculated using either a fixed method or a reduced value method is based on the cost of fixed assets. The depreciation which has already been calculated must be shown in the general ledger at year end. The total annual depreciation or [depreciation for] a portion of the year which has not been recorded in the accounts shall not be considered as expenses which may be deducted from annual profit. In the event of a sale of any asset during the year, the annual depreciation or the [depreciation for] a portion of the year shall be deducted from the cost in order to calculate the excess value or reduced value³¹ of such asset.

A fixed asset which has been fully depreciated according to the period of use must not be deducted in the following year.

³¹ The terms “excess value” and “reduced value” appear to be references to the capital gain and capital loss, respectively, that may be realised on the sale of the asset.

3. Reserves for unexpected expenses and risks that are highly likely to occur, amortization of fixed assets³², stock³³ value, value of accounts receivable.

Reserves which are not applied according to plans³⁴ or are not used or are not fully used must be recorded as annual profit subject to tax.

Freelancers are not authorized to establish any kind of reserves for deduction from annual profit.

Article 38. Non- Deductible Expenses

Expenses that are not deductible in calculating the annual profit tax of businesses that maintain the advanced or the ordinary accounting system are as follows:

- Expenses which are not directly related to business operations such as: golfing, dancing, sports, and other entertainment [activities];
- Profit tax and minimum tax of enterprises;
- Salaries which a partnership company pays to its partners or the salary that the owner of a sole-trader enterprise pays to himself;
- Interest paid on [loans] taken by the shareholder in order to pay for the capital investment;
- All types of fines;
- Donations, support payment, gifts and prizes.

These non-deductible expenses may be used only when profit tax has been paid³⁵, [and] for companies that have entered into a joint venture with the State [, such non-deductible expenses] may be used only after paying dividends to the State.

Article 39. Calculation of Profit Tax using the Deemed Method³⁶

Individuals or legal entities that do not maintain an accounting system or do not properly maintain an accounting system are subject to the following:

³² In the Lao language, the same term “fixed asset” is used for both tangible and intangible fixed assets. In the context of “amortization”, this appears to be a reference to intangible fixed assets.

³³ This term refers to “stock” in the sense of inventory.

³⁴ This term has the connotation of “in accordance with the purpose of the reserve”.

³⁵ The phrase “may be used only when profit tax has been paid” is intended to designate these as “after tax” expenses.

³⁶ The literal translation of this term is “compulsory” method.

The basis for calculation of the profit tax payable is the annual income multiplied by the profit ratio of each type of activity as provided in Article 35 of this law. In the event that individuals or legal entities are not able to determine their income, the tax authority shall collaborate with the other relevant sectors³⁷ and shall determine the income based upon the actual³⁸ information and data.

Article 40. Profit Tax Rates

The profit tax rates consist of general rates and reduced rates as follows:

1. General Rates:

- The rate of 35 % applies to businesses of legal entities.
- The profit tax rate of foreign investors is stipulated in the law on the promotion of foreign investment³⁹ in the Lao PDR which is in force;
- Sole-trader enterprises, enterprises which pay tax based on a basic accounting system and freelancers shall follow the table below:

Level	Taxable Profit at Each Level	Basis of calculation	Tax rate	Profit Tax at each Level	Total Taxes Payable
	2,400,000 Kip and below	2,400,000	0%	0	0
1	2,400,001 Kip to 5,000,000 Kip	2,600,000	10%	260,000	260,000
2	5,000,001 Kip to 10,000,000 Kip	5,000,000	15%	750,000	1,010,000
3	10,000,001 Kip to 30,000,000 Kip	20,000,000	20%	4,000,000	5,010,000
4	30,000,001 Kip to 60,000,000 Kip	30,000,000	30%	9,000,000	14,010,000
5	Above 60,000,000 Kip	35%

³⁷ The word “sector” is often used to refer to the cluster of government ministries or agencies engaged in a particular activity.

³⁸ The term “actual” may suggest obtaining information from other similar activities that have available accounts or obtaining information about this taxpayer which the authorities are able to obtain from other sources.

³⁹ This reference is intentionally written in lower case because it refers to whichever promotion law is then in force.

2. Reduced Rates:

Reduced rates are determined in the law on promotion of domestic investment or the law on promotion of foreign investment which are in force.

Chapter 3 Declaration and Payment of Profit Tax, Closing of Accounts⁴⁰ and Carry Forward of Losses

Such agreement is effective for one year. In the event that the taxpayer has the intention to terminate the agreement [such taxpayer must] give 60 days notice prior to the expiration of the agreement to the tax authority. The tax authority has the right to terminate the agreement at all times if it finds that the taxpayer's activities have expanded beyond what was determined in the agreement, and the [tax authority has the right] to demand collection of taxes from the excess [income] derived

⁴¹ This is a literal translation. This sentence appears to be a title or description of the two bullet points to follow.

Chapter 3

Calculation[,] Declaration and Payment of Income Tax

Article 61. Calculation of Income Tax

Income tax is calculated and paid on an annual basis or [paid] in accordance with the agreement based on the total of all types of income. Before making a tax calculation, income in foreign currencies must be calculated in Kip currency at the bank exchange rate from time to time.

Persons who receive a salary of 1,500,000 Kip and below who must pay monthly tax [shall,] prior to calculation, deduct the monthly exempt amount in the amount of 300,000 Kip from the salary subject to tax. Persons who receive a salary of more than 1,500,000 Kip must pay in accordance with the progressive rates stipulated in Table 2 of Article 60 of this law.

In the event that taxpayers have already paid income tax in advance within the year, the advance tax payment must be credited against annual income tax payable.

Article 62. Income Tax on Salary

Income tax on salaries is payable monthly through withholding when paying salaries. The method of calculation of such tax shall be in accordance with the provisions of Article 61 of this law.

In the event that a taxpayer receives salary from many different sources or underreports his income, his tax will be recalculated at the end of the year.

Article 63. Income from Immovable Property

Income from the lease of immovable property (fixed assets) shall be paid each time the income is received. In the event that a taxpayer has received an advance payment for lease for many years all at once⁴⁹, the income tax will be calculated for each year, and shall be multiplied by the number of years for which payment has been received in advance.

Article 64. Income from Movable Capital

Income tax from dividends, profit from the sale of shares, interest [income from] loans, security fees, income from patents, copyright, trademarks or other intellectual property is payable each time income is derived by withholding when making payment.

⁴⁹ This appears to be a reference to a multi-year lease where the rental is paid in advance for several years.

In the event that income from movable property has been included in the income of an enterprise which is regularly paying profit tax, such income shall not be subject to income tax. In the event that the income tax has been already withheld from such income, [such tax] must be credited against the annual profit tax payable. In the event that the tax withheld is higher than the annual profit tax payable the balance shall be carried forward for deduction in the following year.

Chapter 4 Submission of Income Tax Declaration

Article 65. Income from Salary

Organisations, enterprises, or individuals who pay salaries to employees, workers, civil servants and other individuals on the basis of a contract or other binding obligation have the duty to calculate and withhold income tax from the monthly salary each month before making payment and submit a tax declaration to the tax authority by the fifteenth of the following month in order to pay tax.

Article 66. Income from Immovable Property

Persons who receive income from the lease of immovable property have the duty to file a tax declaration to the tax authority where such taxpayer is registered within ten days from the date of receipt of the rent in order to calculate and issue a tax payment order.

In the event that the declaration of the rent in the contract does not reflect the actual [rent], the tax officers have the right to inspect and recalculate the tax by comparing with the average market rent for similar property in the same area.

In the event that the right to use land or other assets has been given for no cost, the beneficiary of the use of those assets has the duty to pay income tax on behalf of the owner of such assets. The tax shall be calculated based on the actual situation by comparing with the average market rent for similar property in the same area.

In the event that the lessor does not charge for the lease for a certain period of time, because the lessee has himself paid for clearing, construction, maintaining or repairing the location leased, the benefits in kind received by the lessor will be subject to income tax. The basis for the calculation of annual income tax is the value of the clearing, construction, maintenance and all repair costs divided by the amount of time that the lessee has not paid for the lease.

In the event that there is no tax declaration and payment within [the specified] period, the person earning income from the lease shall be subject to a compulsory tax payment in accordance with the provisions of Article 82 of this law.

Article 67. Income from Movable Capital

Individuals or legal entities which distribute dividends, profit from the sale of shares, interest income on loans, income from security and income from patents, copyright, trademarks or other intellectual property to income earners, have the duty to withhold tax and file a list⁵⁰ with the tax authority where the person is registered within ten days from the date of payment of such income in order to calculate and issue a tax payment order.

The rates of fees and service charges of each government sector are determined in presidential edicts in order to meet the actual socio-economic conditions from time to time.

Article 71. Remittance of Fees and Service Charges

Revenues generated from fees and service charges must be completely and centrally remitted to the State budget.

⁵⁰ The literal translation of this term is “list” although one would expect that such list accompanies a tax declaration. However, the text does not refer to the declaration here.

⁵¹ In the context, it would appear that these are “official” documents. See Article 69.

Before using a book of accounts, such book must be registered and allocated with a number, stamped, and certified by the signature of the relevant tax officer. All accounting documents used must be kept for ten years and must be available at all times for inspection by tax officers.

⁵² The literal language is slightly awkward but appears to be a reference to the fact that such prohibition of disclosure is “for the good” of the petitioner.

A computerized accounting system must be registered in accordance with the accounting regulations.

Article 75. Issuance of Invoices for the Sale of Goods and Services

Persons conducting manufacturing, [or] trade, [persons providing] services and freelancers who pay profit tax according to the advanced, ordinary and basic accounting systems as stipulated in Article 41 of this law must issue an invoice to the buyer or the user of services at the time of each sale of goods or provision of service.

3. The revenue, fees and service charges collection unit⁵⁴ shall be responsible for calculating and issuing a tax payment order and for collection⁵⁵ and will prepare and submit a daily list to its tax authority;

⁵³ This is reference to the tax authority to which the tax collection unit reports.

⁵⁴ This is a generic reference to whichever governmental unit is responsible for collecting revenue or fees or services charges, as relevant.

⁵⁵ The translators are aware that point 1 is missing the word “collection”.

4. The tax authority shall be responsible for monitoring and collecting taxes that have been calculated and to fully remit them to the national treasury.

Article 77. Adjustment of Taxes

In calculating the taxes payable, if the amount of taxes calculated yields a number containing a figure in the hundreds [of Kip], such figure shall be rounded up or down to the closest figure in the thousands.

Article 78. Method of Payment of Taxes, Fees and Service Charges

Payment of taxes, fees and service charges shall be made in Kip currency and shall be paid in full; [such payment] can be made by cash, cheque, transfer money⁵⁶ or bonds. Article 80. Tax Refund⁵⁸

In the event of an incorrect calculation of taxes, such as double tax payments, payments made based on incorrect tax rates, overpayment of tax,

⁵⁶ This appears to be a reference to electronic and wire transfers.

⁵⁷ The literal translation of this phrase is “fees for flying over the sky of the Lao PDR”.

⁵⁸ The term refund also connotes the offset and the refund of the overpaid taxes in cash.

failure to use a tax credit, the tax authorities must resolve [these problems] by crediting such amount against a similar type of tax or other types of tax payable in the following month, quarter or year.

In the event that the calculation of taxes was made incorrectly in respect of individuals or legal entities which do not conduct business, the tax authority must give a refund.

Article 81. Timeframe for Tax Collection

Article 83. Penalties

Taxpayers who violate the provisions regarding the declaration and payment of taxes provided in this law shall be subject to measures according to each specific case as follows:

1. In the event that [the taxpayer] delays in making tax declarations or [delays the payment of] taxes according to an agreement on the payment of tax based on the basic accounting system, [that taxpayer] shall be fined at five percent (5%) of the amount of tax payable for each month or quarter of delay. In calculating such fine, if such delay is not a complete month or quarter, then such [fine] shall be computed as a full month or quarter. In any event, such fine shall not exceed the amount of the tax payable;
2. In the event of improper maintenance of accounts, incomplete declaration and payment of taxes, sale of goods or provision of services without issuing an invoice, falsifying invoices or other accounting documents, [the offenders] shall be subject to the three measures as follows:

⁶⁰ The Lao language does not require nouns to contain information as to whether they are singular or plural. The items in this list are ambiguous as to whether they are singular or plural; therefore, the translators have simply used the singular form and have made no attempt to describe or qualify such entities.

During the cessation, seizure of assets or during court proceedings, if the taxpayer completely pays all of his outstanding taxes and fines, the tax authorities have the right to nullify the cessation of activities, cancel the seizure of the assets, or may request the withdrawal of the petition from the court which will cause the prosecution of the taxpayer to end.
