LAO PEOPLE'S DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC

On the Promulgation of the Penal Law

Pursuant to the resolution dated 2 December 1975 of the people's representatives of the country on the appointment of the President;

Pursuant to the Law No. 4/SPA dated 19 April 1988 on the Supreme People's Assembly of the Lao People's Democratic Republic; [and]

Pursuant to [the letter] No. 29/SPA, dated 23 December 1989, of the fourth session of second Supreme People's Assembly on the adoption of the Penal Law.

The President of the Lao People's Democratic Republic Decrees That:

Article 1. The Penal Law is hereby promulgated.

Article 2. This decree shall enter into force on the date it is signed.

Vientiane, 9 January 1990

President of the Lao People's Democratic Republic

PENAL LAW

GENERAL PART

Chapter 1
General Principles

Article 1. Role of the Penal Law

The role of the Penal Law is to safeguard the political, economic and social system of the Lao People's Democratic Republic, the property of the State, collectives and individuals, the life, health, rights and freedom of the people, and the national security and public order; to counter and prevent offences; and to educate all citizens to respect the laws.<sup>1</sup>

In order to implement this role, this law defines certain acts as offences<sup>2</sup> and subjects the perpetrator to penalties.

Article 2. Basis of Penal Responsibilities

An individual can only be charged with and punished for an offence based on intentional or negligent acts deemed dangerous for society as defined in this law and [can be punished] only when a decision is rendered by a court.

Chapter 2
Territorial Scope of Penal Law

Article 3. Application of Penal Law within the Territory of the Lao People's Democratic Republic

<sup>2</sup> The terms "offence" and "infraction" are used to refer generally to criminal acts. There are three levels of such criminal acts as set out in Article 7. "Minor offence", "major offence" and "crime" are used specifically to refer to those three levels. The translators are aware that the Specific Part of the Penal Law does not in fact categorise offences into these three levels.

This law is binding in the territory of the Lao People's Democratic Republic. An individual who commits an offence within the territory of the Lao People's Democratic Republic may be charged and punished in accordance with the Penal Law of the Lao People's Democratic Republic.

In the event that diplomatic representatives or individuals benefiting from the diplomatic immunity conferred by international conventions commit offences in the territory of the Lao People's Democratic Republic, these cases shall be solved through diplomatic channels.

Article 4. Application of Penal Law outside the Territory of the Lao People's Democratic Republic

Lao citizens who commit offences outside the territory of the Lao People's Democratic Republic shall be charged with and punished for such offences if they are defined [as offences under] the Penal Law of the Lao People's Democratic Republic.

Aliens and apatrids residing in the Lao People's Democratic Republic<sup>3</sup> who commit offences outside the territory of the Lao People's Democratic Republic shall also be charged and punished.

Foreign individuals who commit offences outside the territory of the Lao People's Democratic Republic shall be charged and punished as provided in the Penal Law of the Lao People's Democratic Republic if such a case is provided for in international conventions.

Article 5. [Period of Effectiveness of] the Penal Law

This law enters into force on the day it is promulgated.

Any new law calling for lighter penalties or eliminating any offence provided in former laws shall take retroactive effect.

New laws stipulating new offences or calling for heavier punishment than that provided in an earlier law shall not take retroactive effect.

Chapter 2
Offences and Offenders

Article 6. Definition of Offence

All acts and abstentions deemed dangerous to the political, economic or social system of the Lao People's Democratic Republic, to the property of the State, collectives or individuals, to the lives, health, rights or freedom of the people, or to national security or public order as provided in the Penal Law shall be considered offences.

<sup>3</sup> Readers may wish to refer to the Law on Lao Nationality for the distinction between citizens, foreign individuals, aliens and apatrids (i.e., persons unable to certify their nationality).

All acts or abstentions with all the components of offences but resulting in minor social damage shall not be considered offences.

Article 7 (New). Categories of Offences

Offences are divided into three categories:

- “Minor offences”<sup>4</sup> are offences punished under the law by public criticism;
- “Major offences”<sup>5</sup> are offences punished under the law by re-education without deprivation of liberty, fines, and imprisonment from three months to ten years; [and]
- “Crimes”<sup>6</sup> are offences punished under the law by imprisonment from five years up to the death penalty.

Article 8. Intentional Offences

Intentional offences are voluntary acts or abstentions of the offender, which are undertaken with full knowledge of their dangerous nature for society and their consequences.<sup>7</sup>

Article 9. Negligent Offences

Negligent offences are acts or abstentions of the offender undertaken carelessly with full knowledge that such acts or abstentions might be dangerous for society, and where the consequence is expected and possible to anticipate, although the offender [himself] does not believe or expect that such consequence would take place.<sup>8</sup>

Article 10. Offences Pertaining to Several Categories

An offence pertaining to several categories refers to an act or several acts of infraction committed by an individual, [where such act or acts are] classifiable under two or more categories,<sup>9</sup> transgress several articles of the Penal Law, and with respect to which a decision shall be rendered at the same time and in the same court.

<sup>7</sup> For readability, the structure of this sentence has been modified. There are two principal requirements under this article – voluntariness and knowledge of consequences.

<sup>8</sup> For readability, the structure of this sentence has been modified.

<sup>9</sup> There is insufficient textual evidence to confirm whether this comma should be interpreted as “and” or “or”.

Article 11. Recidivism

Recidivism refers to an intentional offence committed by an individual while he<sup>10</sup> is still serving his sentence for a previous intentional offence, or an intentional offence committed by an individual within a period of five years after serving a sentence for the same or a similar intentional offence.

Article 12. Preparation to Commit Offences

“Preparation to commit an offence”<sup>11</sup> refers to the preparation of materials, conditions or other factors in order to commit an intentional offence.

Such preparation to commit an offence shall only be charged or punished if deemed dangerous for society, as provided in the specific part of this law.<sup>12</sup>

Preparation to commit offences shall be punished according to the articles prescribing penalties for the offence itself.

Article 13. Attempts to Commit Offences

“Attempt to commit an offence”<sup>13</sup> refers to the taking of intentional acts which are components of an offence but where the offence was not completed because of circumstances outside the control of the offender making such acts not successful.

Such attempts to commit an offence shall only be charged or punished if deemed dangerous for society, as provided in the specific part of this law.<sup>14</sup>

Attempts to commit an offence shall be punished according to the articles prescribing penalties for the offence itself.

<sup>10</sup> The reader should note that the Lao language does not distinguish between genders in pronouns. In this translation, a reference to a gender is a reference to all genders, unless the context requires otherwise (as is the case in some Articles). The translators’ decision to use the male gender pronoun as the default translation was made in the interests of simplicity and consistency.

<sup>12</sup> Readers should not assume that all preparations and attempts to commit an offence are punishable. Rather, the articles in the specific part of this law specifically prescribe whether preparation or attempt of an offence is punishable.

Article 14. Voluntary Abandonment of Offences

Any individual who voluntarily abandons the completion of an offence during its preparation or attempt shall not be charged or punished, unless [any act of preparation or attempt which he has taken] is itself a [separate] offence as provided in this law.

Article 15. Definition of Offender

An offender is an individual who has committed any acts or abstentions that cause danger to society and [where such acts or abstentions] satisfy all the components of an offence as provided in this Penal Law.

Article 16. Participation in an Offence

“Participation in an offence”<sup>15</sup> refers to intentional participation in an offence by two or more persons.

Participants in an offence are authors, implementers, inciters and accomplices.

1. The author is the one who has planned, organised or given instructions to commit the offence;
2. The implementer is the one who has directly committed the offence;
3. Inciters are persons persuading others to commit offences; [and]
4. Accomplices are persons who have given assistance in the offence, or who have previously agreed to hide the offender, to hide instruments and tools of the offence, to efface traces of the offence or to conceal any proceeds from the offence.

Chapter 4 Exemption from Charge and Punishment

Article 17. Minors

Individuals who have not reached the age of fifteen at the time an offence is committed shall not be charged or punished, but the court has to apply the measures provided in Article 48 of this law.

Article 18. Insanity

Individuals committing offences in a state of unconsciousness or of insanity, who are incapable of recognising the consequences of their acts, shall not be charged or punished. Towards such individuals, the court might render a decision to undergo medical treatment as provided in this Penal Law.

Individuals committing offences in a drunken state or under the influence of narcotics shall not be exempted in any way from charge or punishment.

Article 19. Force and Threat

Any individual committing an offence under force or threat in circumstances where such force or threat could not have been avoided shall not be charged or punished.

In the event that such offence is a crime, [the] force or threat shall only constitute extenuating circumstances regarding punishment.

Article 20. Legitimate Defence

Acts of “legitimate defence”<sup>16</sup> refers to acts taken by an individual to safeguard the interests of the State or society, [or to safeguard] his own or another individual's life, health, [or] legitimate rights and interests against acts of aggression dangerous for the society; but such acts of aggression must be truly existing and dangerous, and the acts of legitimate defence must be contemporaneous with and proportionate to the acts of aggression.

Acts of legitimate defence are not considered offences.

Article 21. State of Necessity

[An act taken in a] “state of necessity”<sup>17</sup> refers to an individual’s act which is necessary to avoid threats against the interests of the State or society, [or against] his own or another individual's life, health, [or] legitimate rights and interests, where such threats cannot be avoided by other methods and are not created by such individual, and where the damage caused by such act is less than the damage that would have resulted from the threat.

Acts taken in a state of necessity are not considered offences.

Article 22 (New). Offences against which Complaints Must be Lodged by the Damaged Parties

No criminal proceedings may be brought [against] offences that are not dangerous for society and [against which] the damaged party does not lodge any complaint, including the following matters: physical violence between close relatives without serious injury or physical disability; libel, slander, insult, and outrage to the body or the reputation of the dead; infraction of property rights of close relatives; and violation of domicile and privacy.<sup>18</sup>

<sup>18</sup> For readability, the punctuation and structure of this sentence have been modified.

The withdrawal of a complaint lodged by the damaged party shall terminate such criminal proceedings.

Article 23. Death of the Offender

Criminal proceedings shall be terminated by the death of the offender whether before or after complaints are lodged.

Article 24. Effectiveness of Prosecution

Prosecutions shall not be considered effective unless filed within:

- One year, in the case of minor offences;
- Seven years, in the case of major offences;
- Fifteen years, in the case of crimes.

The [filing period for] effectiveness of a prosecution starts from the day the offence is committed. In the event a second offence is committed while legal proceedings are pending in respect of an earlier offence, the [filing period for] effectiveness of the [first] prosecution shall [re-start] from the day the later offence is committed. In the event of evasion of court proceedings, [the filing period for] effectiveness shall start from the day the offender presents himself or is arrested.

Chapter 5
Penalties

Article 25. Purposes of Penalties

Penalties do not only aim to punish offenders, but also to re-educate punished individuals to bear a pure spirit towards work, to comply correctly and strictly with the laws, to respect the discipline of social life, and to avoid recidivism on the part of the punished offender and other individuals.

Punishment does not aim to generate physical suffering or to outrage human dignity.

Article 26. Categories of Punishment

a /. Principal penalties

1. Public criticism;
2. Re-education without deprivation of liberty;
3. Deprivation of liberty;
4. Death penalty.

b /. Additional penalties

1. Fines (in certain circumstances, it might become a principal penalty);
2. Confiscation of items [connected to the offence];
3. Confiscation of property;
4. Deprivation of election rights;
5. House arrest.

The confiscation of property and house arrest shall be inflicted on the offender only when such penalty is provided in the specific part of this Penal Law.

[In addition to] the principal and additional penalties, the court can request relevant authorities to withdraw driving licenses or other permits, to relieve the offender from [performing] or forbid [the offender] to perform a function or duty, to withdraw orders, medals or titles, and to deport the offender.

Article 27. Public Criticism

Public criticism refers to the criticising of the offender in court. In necessary cases, the court's decision might be published in a newspaper or by other methods.

Article 28 (New). Re-education without Deprivation of Liberty

Re-education without deprivation of liberty is a punishment inflicted upon the offender at his place of work or at other locations, [and pursuant to which] five to twenty per cent of his total salary is remitted to the State in accordance with the court's decision.

A penalty of re-education without deprivation of liberty must not exceed one year.

Article 29. Deprivation of Liberty

Deprivation of liberty may be imposed for three months to twenty years or life imprisonment.

Life imprisonment may not be imposed on offenders who are less than eighteen years old and on women in a state of pregnancy when the offence is committed.

Article 30. Death Penalty

The death penalty is the specific punishment to be imposed on offenders in especially serious cases as stated in the specific part of this law.

The death penalty is carried out by shooting.

It is forbidden to inflict a death sentence on offenders who are less than eighteen years old at the time of the offence, and on women who are in a state of pregnancy at the time the offence is committed, when the court makes its decision, or when the sentence is imposed.

Article 31. Fines

Fines are financial penalties determined by the court according to the cases<sup>19</sup> and within the limits as stated by this Penal Law.

The fine must be computed in accordance with the gravity of the offence on the basis of the offender's economic status. In the event that the offender does not have the capacity to pay the fine, the court may commute such fine into the penalty of re-education without deprivation of liberty.

It is forbidden to commute a fine into deprivation of liberty and vice versa.

Article 32. Confiscation of Property and [Connected Items]

“Confiscation of property”<sup>20</sup> refers to the confiscation by the State of part or all of an offender’s property without any compensation.

A sentence of confiscation of property may only be imposed in serious cases as stated in the specific part of this law.

In the event that the confiscation of all of the offender’s property is imposed, exception must be made for property necessary for the livelihood of the offender and his family according to the list attached to this law. In the event that partial confiscation of property is imposed, the court must set up a clear list of the property to be confiscated.

“Confiscation of items [connected to the offence]” refers to [the confiscation] by the State of items that were used in the offence or in the preparation for the offence, or that were obtained from an intentional offence. Items belonging to other individuals used in the offence shall be confiscated by the State if the owner lending them is not in good faith or if confiscation is deemed necessary for national security.

Items belonging to the State or collectives shall not be confiscated but shall be returned to the relevant authorities.

<sup>19</sup> An offence under an Article may attract different levels of punishment or fine, depending on specified circumstances. For each offence, the Article sets out the different “cases” of circumstances and the respective punishments for such “case”.

<sup>20</sup> The quotation marks have been added and are not in the original text.

Article 33. Suspension of Right to Vote and to Be Elected

Suspension of the right to vote and to be elected is inflicted on offenders committing crimes.

[Where the offender has also been sentenced to deprivation of liberty,] the penalty of suspension of the right to vote and to be elected must not exceed five years from the day after he has finished serving his sentence.

Article 34. House Arrest

House arrest forbids the sentenced offender from leaving a place of residence or from entering other territories as assigned or forbidden by a decision of the court.

[Where the offender has also been sentenced to deprivation of liberty,] house arrest must not exceed five years from the day after he has finished serving his sentence.

The sentence of house arrest may not be imposed on offenders who are less than eighteen years old and on women in the state of pregnancy or women in charge of small children who are less than eight years old at the time the offence is committed.

House arrest is defined in the specific part of this law.

Chapter 6
Prescription of Penalties

Article 35. General Regulations on the Prescription of Penalties

The court prescribes penalties on the basis of legal provisions on the punishment of offences. In prescribing penalties, the court must consider the nature and degree of the social threat posed by the offence, the personality of the offender, and circumstances conducive to the reduction or the increase of penal responsibilities.

Article 36. Circumstances Conducive to the Reduction of Penal Responsibilities

Circumstances conducive to the reduction of penal responsibilities are:

1. An offender is less than eighteen years old;
2. A female offender's state of pregnancy;
3. A legitimate defence;
4. An offence committed under the strong emotional shock generated by an illegal act of the victim;
5. An offence committed under force or threat;

6. An offender acts to prevent damage from being caused by his offence or compensates for the damage voluntarily and in good faith;
7. An offence committed because of the offender's own or of his family's seriously difficult situation;
8. An offender expresses remorse and surrenders to officials, and acknowledges and reveals offences committed by himself and others;
9. A first offence, if it does not cause serious danger to society; [and]
10. An offender has shown merit towards the nation.

In the prescription of penalties, the court might take into consideration other factors not provided in this Article but [which would commonly be considered relevant] to reduce penal responsibilities.

Article 37. Circumstances Conducive to the Increase of Penal Responsibilities

Circumstances conducive to the increase of penal responsibilities are

1. Recidivism;
2. Offences committed by organised groups;
3. Offences committed from greed;
4. Offences towards minors, aged persons, vulnerable persons, or persons materially or in other ways dependent on or under the charge of the offender;
5. Initiation of minors into committing or participating in offences;
6. Barbarous or outrageous acts of infraction towards the victim;
7. Offences with serious consequences;
8. Offences committed during calamities;
9. Offences committed through methods dangerous to the public;
10. Offences committed in a state of drunkenness or drug abuse, and based on the nature of the committed offences, the court has the absolute right to decide whether or not to increase the penal responsibilities;
11. Intentional imposition of guilt on honest persons; [and]
12. Offenders guilty of concealing other offences or using violence to escape.

Article 38. Prescription of Penalties for the Preparation of and Attempts [to Commit] Offences

Prescription of penalties for the preparation of and attempts [to commit] offences must take into consideration their nature and degree of social threat, the degree of implementation of the offender's ill intentions, and the causes of such unsuccessful offences. The court may sentence lighter penalties than those legally prescribed.

Article 39. Prescription of Penalties for Accomplices to and Inciters of Offences

Prescription of penalties for complicity in and incitement of offences must be considered on an equal basis as other forms of participation in such offences, but, taking into consideration the nature and degree of the complicity and incitement, the court may sentence lighter penalties than those prescribed.

Article 40. Prescription of Penalties for Offences Pertaining to Several Categories

Where the same act [or set of acts] constitutes an offence pertaining to several categories,<sup>21</sup> the prescription of penalties must be made on the basis of the legal provision providing for the heaviest punishment.

The prescription of a [total] penalty for several offences pertaining to several articles [in this law] must be made by adding the penalties for each separate offence, but the final result must not exceed the highest penalty that could have been imposed for the most serious offence among such offences.

Additional penalties may be added to the principal penalties in the event that such additional penalty is provided for in the specific part of this law.

In the event that a court decision has been issued and become final, or the offender has served the sentence in whole or in part, but it is determined that additional offences had previously been committed by the offender, the prescription of penalties must be made according to the above mentioned procedures.

In the event that the offender commits an offence after a court decision has been issued and become final or while he is serving his sentence, the court may add the remaining part of the penalty which is still due to be executed in whole or in part to the newly sentenced penalty.

Fines must be executed one by one, and are not subject to the above-mentioned procedures for adding and consolidating penalties.

Article 41. Prescription of Penalties on Recidivism

An offender guilty of recidivism in major offences shall be punished by adding half of the maximum penalty prescribed for major offences under this law to the penalty sentenced by the court for the current offence.

Recidivism in crimes is conducive to an increase of penal responsibilities as stated in Article 37 of this law.

<sup>21</sup> An “offence pertaining to several categories” is defined in Article 10.

Article 42. Stay of Execution of Penalty

The “stay of execution”<sup>22</sup> of deprivation of liberty, re-education without deprivation of liberty or fines as the principal penalty, refers to the suspension of the execution of such penalties for a period of five years. If during such period, the offender is not convicted of any other intentional offence, the penalty shall be lifted. But in the event of a second intentional offence, if the offender is sentenced to be deprived of liberty and such a sentence is final, the offender must execute the new penalty in addition to the one which has been suspended.

The suspension of the execution of a penalty can be in whole or in part. Recidivists, those offenders sentenced to three years of deprivation of liberty or more, or those sentenced for crimes cannot benefit from a stay of execution of penalties.

Article 43. Inclusion of Preventive Custody in the Execution of the Penalty

The total duration of preventive custody must be included [when] calculating the sanctions of deprivation of liberty or of re-education without deprivation of liberty. One day of preventive custody is equal to one day of deprivation of liberty or three days of re-education without deprivation of liberty.

Article 44. Exemption of Penalties by Sending Offenders to Administrative Authorities or Social Organisations for Re-education

If it is determined that the offence constitutes a minor offence and that the offender's personality does not present any threat towards society, the court may send the offender to administrative authorities or social organisations for re-education.

Chapter 7 Circumstances Conducive to Exemption of Penalties and Conditional Liberation before Term

Article 45. Circumstances Conducive to the Exemption of Penalties

Punishments shall be lifted in the following circumstances:

- Death of the offender;
- Expiry of the time limit for execution of the court’s decision;
- Grant of pardon to the offender.

<sup>22</sup>

The quotation marks have been added and are not in the original text.

Article 46. Limitation Period for Execution of the Court's Decision

Penalties shall not be imposed by the court unless executed within the following limitation periods:

- One year for minor offences;
- Seven years for major offences;
- Fifteen years for crimes.

The limitation period starts on the day the court's sentence becomes final. In the event that the offender commits a new offence, the limitation period for execution of the court's decision in respect of any previous unexecuted sentence shall re-start on the day the second offence is committed. In the event that the offender evades penalties during the period of effectiveness of the sentence, the limitation period shall re-start from the day the offender presents himself or is arrested.

Article 47. Conditional Liberation before Term

“Conditional liberation before term”,<sup>23</sup> based on the suggestion of the reformatory centre's responsible committee, may be granted to progressive, repenting, and exemplary working offenders, who have served half of their sentences in the case of offenders who were less than eighteen years old when the offence was committed, two thirds of the sentence in the case of adult offenders and fifteen years for offenders sentenced to life imprisonment.

The local people's court executing the sanction of sentences is entitled to consider the grant of conditional liberation before term and to outline the conditions to be imposed upon the liberated offender. If within a period of five years, the offender who is granted conditional liberation before term has correctly complied with the outlined conditions and has not committed any further offences, the remaining punishment shall be lifted.

In the event that the outlined conditions are not respected during such period [of 5 years], the offender who is granted conditional liberation before term [shall be liable] to serve the remaining sentence. In the event that a new offence is committed during such period [of 5 years], the offender [shall be] liable to serve the new sentence in addition to the former remaining sentence.

Recidivist offenders or offenders sentenced to a death penalty commuted into imprisonment cannot be granted liberation before term.

<sup>23</sup>

The quotation marks have been added and are not in the original text.

Chapter 7
The Court's Measures of
Re-education and Medical Treatment

Article 48. Measures Applied by the Court towards Children

The court shall apply the following measures towards children less than fifteen years old who commit offences:

1. Require the offender to request the damaged party's pardon by appropriate means;
2. Publicise the offence;
3. Send the child back to the person(s) having charge of the child for re-education; or
4. Send the offender to administrative authorities and social organisations for re-education.

The court may apply the above-mentioned measures to children between fifteen and eighteen years old who commit minor and major offences.

The compensation of damages must conform to civil responsibilities.

Article 49. Measures Applied by the Court towards Mentally Disturbed Offenders

Offenders committing offences under a state of mental disturbance or offenders in possession of their full conscience [during the offence who become] subject to mental disturbances before a sentence is imposed by the court or while serving the sentence, may benefit from measures pertaining to medical treatment, such as being sent to psychiatric hospitals or specific medical care centres.

After recovering from such a disturbance to his state of mental health, the offender must be brought back and sentenced by the court or the sentence must be executed if the lodged complaint or the court's decision is still valid.

The duration of medical treatment is to be included in calculating the period of execution of the punishment.

Article 50. Measures Applied by the Court towards Offenders Addicted to Alcohol or Drugs

The court may apply measures of medical treatment in asylums or specific medical centres towards offenders addicted to alcohol or drugs who have committed offences and are not sentenced to deprivation of liberty<sup>24</sup>. In the event that [such addicted] offender is sentenced to deprivation of liberty, the court must apply measures of medical treatment while such offender is serving his sentence, and if after completion of such penalties, the medical treatment is yet to be completed, the court may apply measures for medical treatment by sending the offender for cures in hospitals or entrusting him to the care of administrative authorities, social organisations or collectives to continue his re-education and medical treatment.

After recovering from such an addiction or abuse, the offender must be brought back and sentenced by the court or the sentence must be served if the lodged complaint or the court decision is still valid.

The duration of medical treatment is to be included in calculating the period of execution of the sentence.

SPECIFIC PART

Chapter 1 Offences against National Security And Social Orderliness

Article 51 (New). Treason to the Nation

Any Lao citizen in contact and cooperating with foreigners or foreign organisations for the purpose of undermining the independence, sovereignty, territorial integrity, grand political causes, defence and security, economy, or culture and society of the Lao People's Democratic Republic shall be punished by ten to twenty years of imprisonment and shall be fined from 10,000,000 Kip to 500,000,000 Kip. Furthermore, such person's property may be confiscated as provided under Article 32 of this law, and such person may be placed under house arrest, sentenced to life imprisonment or subject to the death penalty.

Any preparation or attempt to commit such an offence shall also be punished.

Any Lao citizen assigned by foreigners or foreign organisations to commit an offence under this article but [who] voluntarily reports the facts to the authorities in advance before such offence is committed shall not be punished.

Article 52 (New). Rebellion

Any person participating in activities causing civil unrest in order to overthrow or weaken the administration shall be punished by ten to twenty years of imprisonment and shall be fined from 10,000,000 Kip to 500,000,000 Kip. Furthermore, such person's property may be confiscated as provided under Article 32 of this law, and such person may be placed under house arrest, sentenced to life imprisonment or subject to the death penalty.

Any preparation or attempt to commit such an offence shall also be punished.

Article 53 (New). Spying

Any foreign individual, alien, or apatrid gathering intelligence or State or official documents of a confidential nature for the purpose of damaging or undermining the Lao People's Democratic Republic shall be punished by eight to twenty years of imprisonment and shall be fined from 5,000,000 Kip to 300,000,000 Kip. Furthermore, such person's property may be confiscated as provided under Article 32 of this law, and such person may be placed under house arrest, sentenced to life imprisonment or subject to the death penalty.

Any individual gathering intelligence or State or official documents of a confidential nature for the purpose of relaying [them] to Lao rebels carrying out activities undermining the Lao People's Democratic Republic shall be punished by five to ten years of imprisonment and shall be fined from 5,000,000 Kip to 200,000,000 Kip. Furthermore, such person's property may be confiscated as provided under Article 32 of this law, and such person may be placed under house arrest.

The acts of Lao citizens in gathering intelligence or State or official documents of a confidential nature for the purpose of relaying [them] to foreigners or foreign organisations for the purpose of damaging or undermining the Lao People's Democratic Republic shall be considered treason against the nation and shall be punished as provided under Article 51 of this law.

Any attempt to commit such an offence shall also be punished.

Article 54 (New). Territorial Violation Affecting National Security

Any armed person violating the territory of the Lao People's Democratic Republic and thereby affecting the national security shall be punished by five to fifteen years of imprisonment and shall be fined from 3,000,000 Kip to 150,000,000 Kip.
